Professor Xianyi Zeng

Ecole Nationale Supérieure des Arts et Industries Textiles, Roubaix, France

Xianyi Zeng is a full professor in ENSAIT Textile Engineer School, France, and also a guest professor of Donghua University , Soochow University and Wuhan Textile University . IN ENSAIT, he is head of the Department of Design, Distribution and Management and the Research Group for Human-Centered Design. His main research interests include artificial intelligence, digital fashion, sensory analysis, computerized garment design and customized production management. He has published more than 80 papers in reviewed international journals and presented more than 100 papers at international conferences, and have supervised more than 20 PhD students. In addition, as project coordinator, he has conducted two European projects (Asia-Link, SMDTex – European Joint Doctorate Program on Textile Sustainable Design and Management (Erasmus Mundus Program)) and a number of national and regional research projects such as PRTH (French National Research Program for Textile and Clothing), Camille 3D (FUI Program), SUCRE (ARCIR Program) and industrial projects in cooperation with international groups in France and Europe.